GRAVE TROUBLE

With Great Britain

RUSSIA MUST EXPLAIN

Regarding Seizure of Vessel British Warships Moving Russia Must Back Down. Another Battle at Mao Tien Pass

RUSSIA'S HIGH-HANDEDNESS.

London, July 19th.—The Inca Malacca, seized by Russians in the Red Sea is being taken north in charge of a prize crew.

This arbitrary act in capturing a British steamer has sent a wave of indignation throughout Great Britain. The cabinet has been called to consider the question. Grave International trouble may ensue.

Consular and all gilt edged securities took a decided drop on the stock exchange this morning.

MOVEMENTS OF THE FLEET.

The British cruiser Terrible has been ordered from Alexandria to the Red Sea. The Mediterranean fleet has left Malta for the East.

THE MALACCA AT SUEZ.

Suez, July 19th.—The peninsula and Oriental steamer Malacca, captured in the Red Sea, has arrived here flying the Russian naval flag. She is now in command of the Russian naval officers and carries a prize crew from the volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg. The Malacca will pass through the canal.

RUSSIA MUST BACK DOWN.

London, July 19th.—The Daily Express prints the following despatch, dated July 18th, from its correspondent at Malta: "The British Mediterranean fleet left here to-day for Alexandria. It is believed that the destination of the fleet may be connected with the presence of the Russian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red Sea. The British cruiser Terrible is said to have sailed from Suez today for the purpose of looking after the interests of British merchantmen.

TALES OF RUSSIAN BRUTALITY.

Tokio, July 19th.—There are renewed reports from private sources of Russian atrocities. Circumstantial detailed evidence goes to show that it is not an uncommon practice to tie ropes around the necks and feet of the dead and wounded Japanese and drag them behind galloping horses.

ANOTHER BATTLE AT MAO TIEN PASS.

London, July 20th.—The Morning Post's correspondent at General Kuroki's headquarters, telegraphs under date of July 17th: "A Russian force, apparently about twenty thousand strong, attacked the front and left of the Japanese positions on the western slope of Mao Tien Pass at 3 a.m. to-day, under cover of dense fog.

JAPS DRIVEN BACK BUT RECOVER.

The sudden onslaught drove the Japanese outposts back but as soon as reinforcements arrived the Japs gallantly advanced to the attack and after severe fighting drove off the Russians and reoccupied their positions. The Russians retired, their retreat being well covered. Fighting lasted until 2 o'clock in the afternoon and when I left the scene desultory firing was still proceeding.

ODDS WERE IN RUSSIA'S FAVOR.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field via Tunin, July 18th.—Delayed in transmission.—More Russian troops were engaged in yesterday's battle at the Mao Tien pass than in the previous engagement. There were probably double the number of those who took part in the fight at the Yalu river while opposed to them were only one brigade and one battalion of the Japanese force.

THE RIVAL LOSSES.

The Russian loss is estimated at two thousand. The burial of the dead continues. Japanese casualties aggregated three hundred.

The engagement has conspicuously demonstrated wonderful efficiency with more initiative and the Japs outfought and outgeneralled the Russians at every point.

GERMANY DEMANDS EXPLANATIONS.

St Petersburg, July 20th.—Germany has called attention to the seizure of mails on board the Prince Heinrich in the Red Sea on July 15th by the Russian battleship Smolensk and has required explanations. These have not yet been given, the report of the commander of the Smolensk not having arrived. Restoration of mails yesterday was made without instructions from St. Petersburg.

CELESTIALS TELL A FISH STORY.

Chefoo, July 20th.—A junk with eight Russians and fifty Chinese on board arrived here this afternoon, five days from Port Arthur. The Russians refused to talk but the Chinese say that on July 11th and 12th the Japanese captured and occupied, with four thousand men, one of the eastern forts near Port Arthur. Before reinforcements arrived however the Russians cut off these four thousand troops in the fort and exploded mines which resulted in the killing of every Japanese soldier there.

ST. ALBERT

Bulletin Correspondence.

A meeting of the village of St. Albert was recently held to elect an overseer until the beginning of August when the elections for Mayor and councillors will be held.

It was proposed by Jules Shave that Arthur Levasseur be elected overseer. Mr. L. Boudreau objected to Mr. Chave making this motion as he was not a ratepayer last year. It was then proposed by Mr. Hestlinger that Mr. Levasseur be elected overseer. This was seconded by Mr. Chevigny and was finally adopted.

WHITE WHALE LAKE

Bulletin Correspondence.

C. H. Dunn has purchased the mercantile business of F. Kiel and will serve the settlers in this vicinity to the best of his ability.

A. C. Smith and family of Gloucester, Eng., are among the latest settlers in this section. The influx of new settlers bids fair to be large this year and the land in the immediate vicinity is being well taken up.

Quite a good deal of work has been done on the roads and they are now in better conditions for travel than ever before.

Miss Ethel Woollard is in Edmonton where she will remain some time.

A Sunday School was organized here last Sunday by Rev. C. F. Hopkins. For the present the school will meet at the residence of W. C. Dunn. It is expected that a church organization of the Methodist persuasion will be one of the results of the work. A good attendance at the school is expected.

Harry Sulliver and family have just returned from a two weeks' trip to Millet.

A VALUABLE PROPERTY

Contributed.

It has long been the common belief that the mountains directly west of Edmonton would some day be found to be rich in mineral wealth, but few have thought of the prairie country to the east as valuable for anything other than agricultural purposes. Those who visited the Edmonton fair will remember the collection of samples exhibited by the proprietor of the Edmonton Iron and Coal Mines. These samples may still be seen at the offices of the Alberta livery stables. They were taken from near Red Earth Creek, between Victoria and Saddle Lake, where there is a surface iron deposit covering upward of a hundred acres. On eighty acres of this the average depth of the deposit is eight feet; on the remaining twenty-five the average depth is fourteen feet. The deeper deposit disappears in the ground and appears again in the lake, three-quarters of a mile away. The samples vary in color. Those examined by the writer were bright red, brown and yellow ochre color. The report of assays already made show from 28 to 51 per cent of iron oxide. It can be easily mined and there is good reason to believe that it will yet be valuable as a mineral paint.

In close proximity and on property owned by the same company there is a white marl from which experts say a first-class cement can be made, an article which will in every respect be the equal of the well-known Portland cement. It is also claimed that a valuable brick resembling marble in color can be manufactured from it.

At present the company are interesting themselves in a black substance found in the same locality. It has not yet been successfully assayed. Were it not for the fact that it will not burn it might be taken for asphalt coal. This much is known, however; from it can be manufactured a fine black paint and the proprietors, who are by no means inexperienced prospectors, feel confident that it will yet prove a valuable substance.

Samples of the various deposits may be seen at the offices of the Alberta livery stables, and Mr. McAdam, who is at present in charge of the work of development will be glad to give any information and furnish evidence that all claims made by the company can be substantiated.

Canada at th World's Fa r

From the Toronto Star:

St. Louis, July 12.—Canada has reason to feel proud of her display at the World's Fair, not only for the quality and extent of the exhibits, but for the example of brisk business management which the Canadian Commission has shown to a country which plumes itself on its business ability. There is not a State commission on the grounds that could not take a lesson in promptitude, efficiency and intelligent contrivance from Mr. Hutchinson and his loyal staff.

Everything that Canada had to set up was there on the stroke of the clock. When the fair opened the Canadian exhibits were in place and ready for inspection. Nothing had to be altered or removed, or pulled down and put back again. Commissioner Hutchinson's experience led him to adopt a general plan and to stick to it. Where the state commissions showed nothing but confusion and hesitation, the Canadian Commission went ahead, with such fine results in the way of continuity and harmonious effort that it provoked the admiration even of the jealous-minded. It was impossible for that to happen in regard to the Canadian exhibits which happened to many of the State exhibits. Kentucky's is a typical case. Kentucky had appointed a commission that knew more about politics than it did about World's Fairs. The outcome was that the appropriation was exhausted by injudicious expenditures, and Kentucky had to withdraw her horticultural exhibit altogether and curtail her agricultural exhibit very largely. What money is left is now being spent on the State building, and the social functions that take place inside its walls. Many other State exhibits are incomplete for similar reasons. It might almost be said that Canada was the only nation on the ground that was ready to open out when the band began to play. This is one of the advantages of having an experienced commissioner, assisted by a staff that has been there before. The good example of Canada should teach the United States that expert commissions are the proper thing. The expert commission involves the idea of permanency, and permanency implies that the commission is given time to learn its book and to profit by it.

* * * * *

Another advantage of the permanent commission seems to be that better results can be obtained for the money. Any Canadian who takes the trouble to examine the four great exhibits managed by the Canadian Commission—the exhibits, that is, in the Forestry, Horticultural, Agricultural and Metallurgy buildings—will admit that every Canadian dollar has gone as far as four American ones. Take for instance, the horticultural exhibit. California spent on her display of fruits alone $350,000; and yet the Canadian exhibit which got only its share of a modest appropriation, is the next best in that building. Similarly in the Metallurgy building Canada yields place only to Colorado, which spent almost her entire appropriation on that department of industry. In the Agricultural building Canada is first in the character and quality of her display. Missouri is just a little bigger, but what her exhibit gains in size it lacks in arrangement and instruction. Something has been said by the opposition at Ottawa about the largeness of the Canadian appropriation. Criticism should be silenced if the opposition could take a day at the Fair and see what has been accomplished with the public money. Far from being too large, the appropriation could not well have been less. The magnitude of the Canadian exhibits is a moral support to the immigration literature which Mr. Sifton's department sends to the United States. The Americans are aware that many of their friends and kinsmen are leaving the United States for the fertile plains of the Canadian Northwest. This exhibit tells them that the land of promise is a land of performance. The effect on the public mind may be guaged by the remark of an old Hoosier, who had gazed his fill on that wonderful kiosk of grains and grasses which is the centerpiece of our agricultural exhibit. "Gosh!" he exclaimed, "How Canada is spreading herself."

Commissioner Hutchinson's idea is that it's a good thing for Canada to spread herself at World's Fairs, if she does it in the right direction. The Commissioner does not believe much in signs. A big sign with Canada on it affects an American in one of two ways. Either he is so possessed of the exclusive greatness of his own country that he will not walk across the aisle to look at what goes with the sign; or he feels resentment at the country which is drawing off thousands of his best citizens, and views the exhibit with partizan alarm. In view of all the circumstances, Commissioner Hutchinson thinks it best to make the signs just big enough to assert our dignity, and to let the exhibits do the loud talking. For the rest he depends on a color scheme of red and gold, by which you may pick

CURING THE FILLER

THE Pharaoh filler I select in Manicaragua—Province of Santa Clara, Cuba, is generally harvested in February.

The plants are cut down at daybreak—allowed to remain until eleven o'clock in the morning—until they are properly wilted—then taken to curing houses for drying.

After they are thoroughly dried they are allowed to become moist through atmospheric humidity and then made into "hands." Four of these hands constitute a carat, eighty carats make a bale.

After allowing it to age for three full years, in order to develop its superb fragrance and aroma, I make it up into "Pharaoh."

That's why there is a taste and odor of genuine tobacco in my Pharaoh Cigar.

The Militia Bill

The new Militia Bill was under discussion in committee of the whole during the three sittings of yesterday. Notwithstanding the political campaign which has been waged during the past few weeks, of which the administration of the Canadian militia in one form or another was the objective, and although the essential feature of the new bill dealt with the very question around which the campaign was waged, not a word of adverse criticism was offered from the members of the Opposition to the principle of absolute control of the militia of Canada by the Government of Canada which is the essential feature of the bill.

Complete Agreement as to the Main Principle

The old provision that a British officer must command the Canadian militia is left out of the new bill. There was thought to be some saving grace in the connection which was thus established between the Canadian militia and the Imperial forces. Years of experience have proven, however, that instead of this being a saving grace it has been a fruitful and unfailing source of irritation and misunderstanding, of which the latest instance is the Dundonald affair. Before Lord Dundonald arrived in Canada, the Minister of Militia had announced his belief that the time had arrived when Canadian militia affairs could better be administered by one who understood Canada and Canadians than by one who by reason of different opportunities could not possibly understand either the one or the other. The results from the administration of Lord Dundonald confirmed and emphasized the position taken at that earlier date by the Minister, and yesterday when the bill which dropped out the sacred provision that a British officer must command the Canadian militia was under consideration, not a member on either side of the House raised a word of objection.

Personal Grievances, not Great Principles

The discussion throughout the day was confined to matters of detail and a repetition of charges, of political partisanship in administration of the militia, made by members of the Opposition. It is indeed a cold day when the members of the Opposition cannot find refuge from the necessity of discussing great principles by complaints of partisanship. Considering that the country is governed by parties, considering that the party of the Opposition when in power carried political partisanship to an extreme not only in the distribution of public offices and public contracts, but in every association of public and private life, it is not remarkable if they look for like conduct from their opponents, or that they do not have to look far to find it in a sufficient number of cases to enable them to fall long and loud, if not wisely, during committee discussions in the House.

Bourassa vs Militarism

The only question of principle which was discussed was brought up by Mr. Bourassa. He complained that the bill was not sufficiently clear in limiting to the Governor-in-Council the power of calling out the militia. To his mind the wording of the bill seemed to give to the Governor-General the prerogative of the king. It was agreed on all hands that this was not the intention, but it was argued that there was no necessity to express the correct idea more definitely than had been done in the bill. The discussion gave Mr. Bourassa an opportunity to make a number of speeches against what he is pleased to call "militarism." He moved an amendment in line with his suggestions and had the pleasure of voting alone for it.

Sixty-seven clauses, or about half the bill, passed the committee during the day.

PARLIAMENT

Ottawa Correspondence:

The Militia Bill Agreed to

The Militia Bill was under discussion during the whole of Tuesday's sittings and the remainder of its clauses were agreed to in committee of the whole with some slight amendments, only one clause stood over and it merely to be redrafted, the principle being agreed to. This clause related to damages suffered from shots fired on rifle ranges. The bill provided that the government should be responsible when the shooting took place under government regulation. The amendment will provide that the government is responsible in any case.

Divisions of Opinion

The discussion of Tuesday was confined to an interchange of views between members interested in military matters without distinction of political party. Such division of opinion as there was occurred between those of ultra-military and anti-military views and between the respective representatives of labor and of capital. On this latter point the one party demanded that in case of the militia being called out to quell local disturbances the national treasury should pay the cost. The labor men held that the municipal organizations within which the disturbance occurred should pay the cost, as then they would not be so likely to call upon military service for insufficient reasons.

Bourassa and Anti-Militarism

Mr. Bourassa carried the flag of anti-militarism practically alone; for the general opinion seemed to be that while a few members posed as ardent militarists there was no liklihood of the country accepting their views to any injurious extent. All recognized the necessity of a military or militia force for home defence, but there was some discussion on the principle of Canadian military service outside the limits of Canada or for purposes other than the defence of Canada. On the whole, considering the national and even imperial importance of the question involved, the small attendance in the House and the failure to divide on party lines is the strongest possible proof that militarism is not a danger in Canada, but rather that the danger is an undue apathy on the part of the people at large as to military requirements.

The General Officer Commanding

It was expected that party opposition would be offered to the provision cutting out the requirement of a British officer as commander of the militia. There can be no doubt that this amendment had more than a little to do with Lord Dundonald's dissatisfaction with the militia department, and it was in the hope of making this a political issue that the Dundonald boom was organized and carried to such an outrageous pitch. It was, therefore, a political surprise that when the question came up for discussion and decision as a political question it was not even alluded to by the most extreme of Lord Dundonald partisans, much less any objection made to the change. Whatever may have been the case in times past, or whatever may have been the colonial understanding of British war office arrangements in the past, the South African war has placed everything in that connection in a new light. Instead of the methods of the British War Office being such as it would be desirable to copy, judged from the results in South Africa they are rather to be avoided if efficiency or success is to be achieved. It is a pity that this is so. It is a shattering of ideals. But the facts may as well be accepted, as they were accepted by all parties in parliament in the discussion of the Militia Bill.

COUNCIL MEETING

HELD LAST NIGHT

Large Amount of Routine Business Transacted. Coal Contract for the Year

The regular meeting of the Edmonton city council was held in the council chamber yesterday evening commencing at 8.00 o'clock. Mayor Short and Councillors Grierson, Picard, Fraser, Cushing and May were present. The minutes of the last regular and special meetings were read and adopted on motion of Councillors Grierson and May.

Mr. Alexander was present on behalf of the Western Canada Immigration Association. The council had promised him that they would give him a definite answer to his request on behalf of the association for aid in inducing United States immigration to Canada. After some discussion the council put themselves on record as heartily approving of the scheme but regretting that the money allowed the council for immigration purposes had been already expended. The council recommended that Mr. Alexander renew his request to next year's council early in the year.

COMMUNICATIONS.

J. G. Fairbanks recalled to the attention of the council that though they had passed a resolution, no definite action had been taken towards closing the exposed sewer to the General Hospital. This was a menace to the health of the adjoining residents. It was moved by Councillors Grierson and May that the by-law be strictly enforced in this instance and that the health officer be instructed to take the necessary action in the matter.

A letter from Mayor Short to F. Oliver, M.P., relating to the safeguarding of the town's interests in the matter of the application for a charter of the Rainy River and North West Navigation Company. This application provoked a great deal of discussion and the letter was finally ordered fyled.

In previous years the special constables on the exhibition grounds during the fair were paid at the rate of three dollars a day. This year the men were paid off at two dollars per day. They took their grievances to the council last night and the matter was referred to the police committee for investigation.

G. A. Stimson and company wrote regarding the purchase of city electric light debentures at 4 1-2 per cent. It was agreed to accept the offer provided they are purchased in amounts of not less than $10,000.

The North West Gas and Oil Company, through its solicitor, N. D. Beck, ask that the council now execute the agreement with the company as had heretofore been done with the provisional directors.

M. M. Johnston wished to build on Jasper avenue west contrary to the fire by-law. The council considered it impossible to entertain his request.

A new public school is about to be erected on the site of the present one on McKay avenue. The secretary of the Board sought permission to move the present building thirty feet west onto Fourth street until such time as the new building is ready for use. The request was granted provided the school district obtain the consent of the adjoining property holders.

H. W. Heathcote secretary of the fire brigade thanked the council for the raise in salary granted the teamster. Other matters in connection with granting police towers to firemen at train times was discussed. The letter was ordered fyled.

A couple of communications from Frank Oliver, M.P., dealing with the safeguarding of the town's interests in the matter of the Street Railway Bill were dealt with and fyled.

An offer of $25 was made the council for the small building formerly occupied by the power house engineer. This was referred to the property committee.

Donald Ross asked that a license fee be imposed on all peddlars of market garden produce selling within the municipality. It transpired that this request had been made in previous years and the council now, as then, decided that it would not be wise to impose such a fee until the city had a regularly established market.

The Chicago Bridge and Iron Company asked to be paid the balance, $343.50, on their contract for the construction of the water tower. This was referred to the finance committee.

The Secretary of the Canadian Municipalities Association wrote regarding Edmonton's application for membership stating that the regular fee was one dollar for every thousand of population, but that since Edmonton was such a flourishing and particularly favored town, it might pay at the rate of four dollars per thousand. The council failed to see the point of the argument and ordered it referred to the Finance committee for settlement.

The Edmonton Fire Department, through Chief Lauder, requested the council to purchase twelve rubber coats and twelve pairs of rubber boots for the brigade's use. It was moved by Councillors Grierson and May that tenders for these be immediately called for.

The Edmonton Street Railway Company request the council to execute the agreement already made with them provisionally. City Solicitor Beck in reply to a question by the Mayor, stated that all the different provisions had been complied with.

The question of weigh scales at the power house was discussed and it was finally decided to call for tenders for the purchase and installation of a set of scales.

Hart & Wagar, the Edmonton Clothing Company, J. H. Morris, Jno. I. Mills and A. Cristall submitted tenders for the supplying of police clothing. These were referred to the chairman of the police committee with power to act.

C. Nairn offered $175.00 for the warehouse adjoining the fire hall subject to immediate removal. This request was referred to the city engineer with power to act.

A. E. Potter addressed the council regarding his assessment. The matter was referred to the license committee to bring in a report.

The Assessor was ordered to be paid $200 on account.

Councillor May brought up the question of cows and horses running about the municipality. It was decided to publish warnings in the local press and afterwards prosecute to the extent of the law.

The great need of a suitable water trough on the market square was discussed. As soon as the water main is laid down Queens avenue this could be erected.

Councillor Picard brought up the question of straightening Jasper avenue east.

BY-LAWS.

Four by-laws were given their first readings viz., By-law 273, to amend by-law 242; By-law 274 extending the time for the laying of water and sewer service connections; By-law 275 amending by-law 187, regarding the licensing of drays and real estate agents; By-law 276, providing for the raising of $25,000 for extending the sewerage system westward. These by-laws were referred to a committee consisting of Councillors Picard, May and Grierson.

REPORTS.

The city engineer brought in a report regarding the supply of coal for the power house for one year. The tender of the Edmonton Coal Company was accepted and referred to the Mayor and City Solicitor to prepare a contract for execution.

An application for a sidewalk on Tenth street east was forwarded from the Standing Committee.

DOG FISH DISCUSSION

McPherson of Vancouver Suggests Remedy. Good Progress Being Made

Bulletin Special Service.

Ottawa, July 19.—Borden suggested and discussed a bounty on dogfish today. These fish are destroying the valuable fish of the Atlantic coast.

Macpherson, Vancouver, advised the Atlantic fishermen to do as the Pacific fishermen did, to catch the dogfish and extricate the oil for commercial purposes.

Interior estimates were under consideration.

Good progress was made considering the time spent over the dogfish discussion.

WILL TAKE ACTION

AGAINST W. G. TRETHEWAY

J. Mc. K. Dickson of the Linen Factory After the Promoter of the Street Railway

The legal firm of Short, Cross, Biggar and Ewing have been retained in a suit brought by J. McK. Dickson against W. G. Trethewey of Montreal, promoter of the Edmonton street railway project. Mr. Dickson is the promoter of the Edmonton Flax Mills and is now in England on business connected with the establishment of the mills here.

It will be remembered that the flax mill project was first discussed about the same time as Mr. Trethewey was making application to the city council for the taking over of the Edmonton street railway charter. It came to be generally known from interviews which Mr. Dickson and his then partner Dr. Coulter, had with the city council, that the flax mill or linen factory would be erected on the flat adjoining the river and on the east part of the Groat estate. This plot of land was chosen by the promoters as the most favorable for their purpose.

Meanwhile time passed, and a few weeks ago, Mr. Dickson, having matured his plans, left for England to get out special machinery for the mill.

Plaintiffs in the case in question claim that on the 9th of November last the defendant, Mr. Trethewey, covenanted with the plaintiff and Dr. Coulter to transfer to the latter five acres of land, part of river lot 2 of the Edmonton settlement, together with a right of way over the adjoining land. The plaintiffs in the case further claim that Mr. Trecheway covenanted with them to convey to them twelve lots, Nos. 5 to 16, block 23, river lot 2, and also $10,000 in fully paid up, non-assessable shares in the capital stock of a joint stock company incorporated upon a franchise granted to Mr. Trethewey to run a street railway in and about the town of Edmonton. Mr. Trethewey now refuses to make these payments and hence the action taken by Mr. Dickson's lawyers.

The hearing of this case will doubtless furnish interesting evidence. It will not likely be tried before the fall.

Inside Port Arthur

Chefoo, July 16.—The Port Arthur Novikrai, of July 7th, a copy of which has just reached Chefoo, contains an account of the operations around Port Arthur from July 3rd to July 5th. It says: "Heavy fighting has occurred between the first line of defences and the Japanese. The results are not announced. The Japanese do not number less than 30,000 men. The Chinese credit them with 60,000. Thirty thousand men are not sufficient for operation against a fortress like this unless they expect assistance."

"After three days' fighting the positions of the armies were as follows: On the left flank we retained the position we originally occupied. The forcing of our right flank back previous to this was rectified and now we have both Green and Semaphore hills in our hands. In front of these hills we are not opposed, but we are being heavily shelled from both sides. The enemy retired a considerable distance. Of course all this was not done without losses, some of which will strike the hearts of our countrymen.

"We started to take the offensive the night of July 1st, when we began a strong attack. The result was most satisfactory. The infantry marched out as if engaged in manoeuvres while the artillery, taking up a position, opened up a fierce fire with shrapnel on the enemy's line resulting in their retirement.

"During the three days' battle the Novik (protected cruiser) and a fleet of gunboats left the harbor daily, covering the right flank of the army, and stopping the fire of the enemy's artillery. On July 4th the Novik fortunately obtained the range of the enemy's batteries and did frightful damage to them. All the morning the gunboats, without receiving any return fire, shelled the enemy's troops marching towards our defences. The Japanese fleet appeared in the afternoon and our gunboats returned to the inner harbor without sustaining any damage.

Canada at the World's Fair

out the Canadian exhibit in whatever building you may happen to enter; and he fills in the panels of his pillar decoration with chirpy statistics about the gold and wheat and cattle, and butter and cheese we produce every twelvemonth, not forgetting to mention those things in which we beat the world and also the fact that something like fifty thousand Americans settled in Canada last year.

The loyal Canadian begins his tour of the Fair with a visit to the Canadian building—a homey place, with comfortable verandahs, where people are allowed to sit in the shade and eat their lunches. This makes it one of the most popular buildings on the grounds, for in the State buildings this privilege is not allowed. There seems to be a conspiracy everywhere else than in the Canadian building to drive the Fair visitor to high prices and the restaurants. But in the Canada building everything is free—free chairs and free cushions, free sitting-rooms and toilet-rooms, and a piano that can be played on by whosoever is musically inclined. The water is filtered and the water is free—anywhere else that kind of water is a dear a glass. The soft carpets and the pleasant coolness and the unobtrusive Canadian hospitality are all free to everybody, and no questions are asked. The building is always thronged, for it is on one of the busiest thoroughfares of the Fair. The Commissioner had a hard fight to secure this highly desirable location, but he got it, as he gets most of the things that he sets out to accomplish. The building is on the road to the Agricultural building, which everybody goes to see, and particularly the farmers. Now the farmers are the people that Canada wants to attract, and if a tired granger and his tired wife drop into the Canada building who knows what may happen? There is a little room at the back of the building, and it is brilliantly lighted. The farmer, being curious, steps in there, and is confronted by an object lesson—a series of pictures illustrating life in the Northwest, the frames composed of the grains and grasses of the country. The pictures show a Northwest farm at various stages of development, from the prairie to the cultivated steading, with the home lot, the brick house, and the green orchard. One of these pictures represents a Northwest settler signing the patrol sheet of a Northwest Mounted policeman, who is on horseback.

"I suppose," said a worthy old farmer, as he strove to comprehend it, "that that's the deer-trodden Canadian paying his taxes to the British soldier."

Whereupon one of the Commissioner's staff who was standing near, found it incumbent on him to dispel the delusion which Yankee politicians would keep alive. He explained that we are not an oppressed race, and that more true liberty and better protection to life and property may be found under our flag than there is in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

* * * * *

And so the good seed is sown. The American is impressed with the calm and abiding democracy of the Canadians, not the kind of democracy that finds expression in stilted platitudes, but the kind that displays itself in courteous manner and good works. The Canadian building is the first of a series of object lessons. Everything, as I have said, is free. Unlike other State buildings it is never closed to the public for receptions or social functions. It has no catch-pennies. It is the people's house, and the people are allowed to use it without vexatious restrictions. It reads a lesson to the nations of Europe. Go to the British building; you will find there an English accent and a cold stare; all the doors are marked private; the chief object seems to be to keep the crowd out and to maintain a haughty exclusiveness. Go to the Austrian building. Closed. Cardinal Satolli is inside and needs the whole building to see things. Go to the French pavilion—a pretty place, with a pink marble effect. A notice is posted on the gate—passes must be procured in another part of the grounds, a mile distant. Drop into the Holland building. The only thing worth while is the Vandyk room, for which the government of Holland charges ten cents admission. Go to Italy—chains across the door—not ready for a week yet. Here is a little palace—Ceylon. The government of Ceylon is evidently engaged in selling tea—it costs five cents a cup and Ceylon will make expenses. All this, while the Canadian building yearns for you. The doors are wide open; you enter without money and without price and it costs you nothing to get out.

* * * * *

In the Forestry, Fish and Game building Canada has the finest exhibit. California has a better display of polished woods, but Canada excels in general character and scope. The collection of stuffed animals — bears, musk oxen, wolves, and so on—is admittedly the finest at the Fair. The polar bear is a magnificent specimen just about three times the size of the big fellow at Riverdale Park. Some of the other exhibits in the building derive a great deal of their attractiveness from the products of the Canadian forests. For instance, the central decorative feature of the Winchester exhibit of firearms is a moose head, splendidly antlered. That particular moose was shot by a Canadian in the woods of New Brunswick, and it cost the Winchester people five hundred dollars to make it their own. The colony of beavers, which is a special feature of the Canadian exhibit, attracts great crowds. Our national emblems are thriving. Only one accident has happened, and that befell when two of the ferocious moles got together and destroyed each other. Put two mole beavers together and they will behave worse than a Democratic convention. It is worth remarking that only two railways have had the enterprise to make exhibits in this building, and they are both Canadian—the Intercolonial and the Grand Trunk.

But it is on the agricultural exhibit that the Commission has lavished the most pains. It is, as I have said before, the most complete, the most attractive, and the most instructive agricultural exhibit at the Fair. There is a toothsome display of maple sugar with a sugar bush in small in active operation. There is also a fine display of cheese and honey, that proves to all and sundry that Canada is the land of milk and honey which is mentioned in the Bible. The centerpiece of the exhibit, however, is a huge block made of grains and grasses artistically conceived and carried out with splendid attention to detail. The block illustrates the products of the country through which the new transcontinental railway will run. It also represents the cereal products of the settled lands of Canada, from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. It is so well arranged that the casual observer can follow the lesson with his own eyes; and in this way Canada's beauty and utility in the most effective manner. The grains and grasses are handled so as to make frames for painted panels which depict the cattle fed on these prairie grasses. Mr. Turpin, who is the cicerone, does not fail to impress the question—or that these cattle live on the grasses which Nature sows, and not on grasses sown by hand as in the United States. Another lesson of the block is that wheat can be grown all over Canada; another that cattle can be fed with the best results on peas, barley, oats, and grasses. There are little points of detail about the block which will dazzle the beholder, as, for instance, a sample of oats grown in Alberta which ran 140 bushels to the acre. The gold-bordered pillar panels do not forget to press home facts like those, for example—that during the year ending June 30th, 1903, forty-nine thousand four hundred and eight settlers came to Canada from the United States; also that in one year 40,000 farmers sold $40,000,000 worth of farm products.

* * * * *

The horticultural exhibit, which is second only to that of California, demonstrates that Canada grows the best apples in the world for texture and flavor. Our Northern Spies, our McIntoshes, our Golden Russets, are quite unapproachable. The exhibits tastefully displayed and carefully kept. No spotted or blemished fruits are allowed to remain on the trays, which is an example that might be followed to advantage by the various states. Mr. Race, the head of this department, states that it is a matter of constant surprise to the visitors that Canada, which they have considered a bleak and inhospitable wild, can produce such splendid plums, grapes and peaches.

Prof. Day, the Government expert at Washington, concedes that Canada has the finest display of economic minerals at the Fair. Neither in extent nor arrangement does any other exhibit in the Mines and Metallurgy building approach it, except that of Colorado, which is intended for a college museum when the Fair is over. The Canadian exhibits are in knock-down cases, ready for some other fair, but only to that extent does the display suffer by comparison. It is a great source of satisfaction to Mr. Broadbent that in the United States, where they have a boast of having the biggest of everything, Canada can show the biggest features in this particular building. We have, for instance, the largest display of minerals, of nickel or corundum, of graphite, of nickel ore, of asbestos, and in one section of the cases from Londonderry, N.S., Ontario shows the largest mineral map in the building, besides an impressive display of coals and ores from Lake Temiskaming, nickel from Sudbury, coal ore from the Rainy River district, and graphite, corundum, and feldspar from other places in the north country. The exhibit includes coal from the Rocky Mountains and Nova Scotia, asbestos from Megantic, in Quebec, chromic iron from Quebec, silver and gold from British Columbia. A pet feature with Mr. Broadbent is a perfect crystal of zercon, a curious gem embedded in apatite. The United States Government would like to buy it for the collection at Washington, but Canada will not let go. The largest sheet of mica that was ever mined was seven feet long. It was found at Sydenham, Frontenac County, and a section of it is exhibited here. One crystal from Quebec weighs 1,200 pounds.

The most popular feature of this exhibit is the Yukon gold cabin. It is built of the characteristic minerals of the various Provinces, and is in that respect a well-contrived object lesson for those who are scientifically minded. The cabin is lighted with electric lamps, and behind plate glass and iron bars is displayed a glittering assortment of Yukon gold in grains, nuggets, and bars. The cabin is guarded night and day, for the gold is worth fifty thousand dollars. The idea of the cabin is Commissioner Hutchinson's, who says he is content to leave the scientific part of the show to somebody else, so long as he can run what he calls the vaudeville end. By that he means that he will dig out the happy thoughts which will draw the crowds our way.

Racing Forest Fires

Vancouver, July 16.—Last Monday at midnight a large bush fire raging on Serge Narrows, swept down on H. A. Bull's logging camp headquarters and cleaned it out. The loggers sought safety in flight on a large raft.

When the crew of the camp turned in on Monday night the fire was so far distant that danger was not apprehended. A change in the wind, however, turned the path of the fire directly for the camp and at midnight the sleeping inmates of the bunkhouse were warned to vacate the premises by the terrified screams of the livestock about the camp.

When the sleepy loggers managed to get their bearings, it was seen that the camp buildings were doomed and it was a case of take to the unburnt woods near or to a log raft kept on the shore as a mooring for steamers. As the woods round about were afire, and there was no telling where the flames might run, it was decided to seek safety on the raft.

By this time the atmosphere in the camp was so heated that it was necessary for the men to move lively. Personal and portable camp property was hurried down to the shore and onto the raft, and just as the buildings were commencing to burn, the roofs having caught from sparks falling from the trees, the crew, numbering between thirty and forty men, was ready to depart from the zone of light and heat out into the safety afforded by the water. In the excitement of the hurried evacuation of the camp several porkers were overlooked, although a horse, a dog, and some chickens had been placed on the raft.

Some time after the raft had been shoved off from shore the absence of the pigs was made known by terrific squealings from the animals themselves as they dodged about the bush in their flight from the flames. No person wishing to venture ashore until daylight, the pigs were allowed to keep on squealing and they made the best of the opportunity till dawn, when they were rescued, slightly scorched and smoked, but still good pigs.

About six o'clock on Tuesday morning the steamer Coquitlam hove in sight. To those on board the steamer the raft and its unwilling occupants was a reminder of the strenuous times Noah must have had with his menagerie. Jumbled in an indiscriminate mess on the raft were sleeping men, livestock and other effects which had been saved from the flames. It developed that only the camp buildings had been destroyed, the donkey engines, flumes and other camp equipment not having come within reach of the fire.

Reports from other upcast logging points are that the men at the Hastings operating camp at Rock Bay had a fourth fight to suppress the fires burning at that point. Sliammon was visited by a large fire last Friday, and for five days and nights its spread was fought. Small fires raged at Hardwick and Valdez Island. It is thought that yesterday's rain, which was very heavy up the coast, would check and destroy the majority of the fires in some places upcoast the smoke was so dense from the fires that it resembled a heavy fog.
